

In the name of God

We have only sent you [Prophet] as a mercy to humanity (Surah Al-Anbya, verse, 21).

Defamation of Muslim sanctities is a clear violation of freedom of speech and is unacceptable from a human rights perspective in the international community, violating the provisions of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR), the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR), and Western press laws. The shameless and recurrent insults of the ill-reputed French magazine "Charlie Hebdo" to the Holy Prophet (PBUH), the Prophet of peace and kindness, and subsequently the support of the French president for these blasphemous acts, demonstrate the modern ignorance and an intellectual and moral decline of the Western societies in the current age. We, the academic staff of the University of Bonab, hereby strongly condemn French president's insulting statements against the Prophet of peace and compassion and expect the elite, academics, and free thinkers all over the world to condemn the desecration of Muslim sanctities under the pretext of freedom of speech and, via enlightening and informing, prevent any recurrence of such heinous acts.
